Insured Americans Killed.

That many Americans have lost their lives in the European war is shown by the seventy-first annual report published by the New York Life Insurance Company. During last year 409 policy holders were killed on field of battle; 448 were killed by accident, which includes Lusitania losses; 707 died of cancer; 772 died of pneumonia, and 950 died of tuberculosis.

"It's all my fault-it's all my fault! General, I am sorry to see you wounded-it's all my fault. Colonel, I am sorry to see you suffer. Captain, it's all my fault."

And so with words of sympathy and self-blame, down to the heroic privates in the ranks.

"It's all my fault!" But the god of battles knew it was not his fault, and so does the world-and history.

Was there ever a man like Lee? What soldier, North or South, has not known army commanders, corps, division, brigade and even regimental officers to openly impart the blame to some brother officer for the loss of a battle? It was more common during our great war than reciprocal commendation.

His soldiers loved him as a man and a leader with a devotion unequaled in all the annals of time. When he rode down the lines at rest, on either side the way, every soldier would rise to his feet, hat in hand, to exclaim: "Here comes hand, to exclaim: "Here comes Avoid exposure and drafts. Eat Marse Bob!" As he uncovered his right. Take Dr. King's New Discovhead and bowed in acknowledgment the response would ring: "God bless that head! Lee certainly never met Grant while the latter was receiving like distinction from his own army!

It is conceded that the terms of surrender at Appomattox were generous; at the same time he was as happy to quit, as he well might be, for he had tried Southern mettle before.

It seems to have escaped the conception of the historians, but Appomattox was Lee's greatest victoryhis victory as military chieftain, as patriot and man. No one but a hero would have surrendered-any other would have fought to the last ditch. The conflict would have degenerated into deplorable guerrilla warfare Gen, Lee knew that the whole South had its eyes on him and expected final triumph.

He called his leading subordinates and explained that their little army was completely surrounded by five or six to one. "How many of cut your way through?" he asked of the intrepid Gen. John B. Gordon, of

What a burden he felt upon his great heart in laying down his sword at the feet of the conqueror. It was the first and only time Lee ever met Last Wednesday was the birthday Grant in personal contact. Lee's tattered soldiers is a classic-a model for all time. GEOLOGICAL SURVEY REPORT

A prehistoric sea, or arm of the ocean, which extended from the Gulf of Mexico far up into New York State, together with the early animal life of this sea, is described A in an interesting manner by the United States Geological Survey in reporting to a correspondent on a rock sample. It says:

"The rock existed very long ago, many million years ago, in what geologists call the Devonian period. Hartford Herald 1 year $1.00 At that time a large part of the eastern United States was occupied by an arm of the sea which extended northeastward from the Gulf of Mexico region into New York State. The eastern shore of the sea was not far east of the present line of the Blue Ridge and the Highlands of New Jersey and southeastern New York, and still farther east lay a great continent which extended an unknown distance into the area now occupied by the North Atlantic, The northern shore of the sea was somewhere near a line drawn from Aland Buffalo. The present site of the Catskills was thus near the northeast end or head of this sea or gulf. with land not far away on the east and north.

"The sea teemed with life, almost wholly invertebrate animals part of the life appears to have inhabited the sea bottom. Brachiopods, though rare now, were very abundant then, and many other forms of animals crawled about or grew upon the sea floor. As the streams washed in sand and mud from the neighboring lands the sea gradually filled is aflorded you. up and the shells of many brachiopods and other shell-bearing animals their form preserved till now. By slow upward movement of the crust the sea was drained from the region and the beds of sand and mud that had been hardened into sandstone and shale, were lifted thousands of ave since been carved from this uplifted mass of rock through the cutting of valleys by the streams.

'As a rule none of the original naterial of the shells is preserved, having been dissolved away very compacted about the shells, their Advertisement. forms were preserved, however, as molds in the sandstone. Some of the molds have since been filled by calcite (calcium carbonate) which has crystallized from water that soaked through the rock, and thus casts were formed having the same shape as the original shells and consisting of similar material. The fact that few, if any, whole shells were preserved in this particular rock shows that, after the death of the animal which they belonged to, the shells were washed about by waves and before being buried in the sand."

Armenian Villagers Besieged 36 Days.

Heroic Defense Against Big Odds-Sharpshooter Silenced a Battery.

RESCUED BY FRENCH WARSHIP NOTED MEDICINE MAN

A thrilling story comes from Syria of the heroic defense and narrow escape of four thousand Arty-six days on Mount Moses by double their number of Mohammedans, and delivered at last by the timely arrival of a French cruiser. The people of six villages on the slopes of Monsa Dagh (Mt. Moses), in keeping with the Turkish policy of exterminating the Armenians, were ordered by the Turks to prepare for immediate deportation. Some the villagers at once gave themselves up to the soldiers and were marched away. The majority, however, went up to the heights of the mountain, carrying arms, food, cools and their flocks of goats and sheep. Here they were promptly attacked and besieged. The story of the slege is told by Our special price for all five, one a young Armenian pastor, Dikran Andreasian:

"The Turkish advance guard was and new subscribers. If you are at two hundred regulars, and the cappresent a subscriber to any of the tain boasted that he would clear the bany through Syracuse, Rochester, above, send us your order and your mountain in one day. THE KOREAN RELIGION A VERY TRAGIC JOKE

Many Spirits Worshipped In Various Ways, But None In Truth.

"Korea may well be classed with Athens as a land with many gods." says Missionary L. T. Newland, of the Southern Presbyterian Church. "And the Koreans, like the old Athenians, ignorantly worship the "Unknown God," for they have a dim knowledge of a supreme being who created all things, who gives the rains and the harvests. But, like the deists, they claim he made all things and then gave over the running of affairs to various spirits, who must be worshipped and placated. Especially is this true of the malign spirits who are constantly interfering with and opposing, the work of the good spirits. Therefore the Korean argues that the good ones will help anyway because they are good, and that you need only bribe the various forms of malign devils to gain a great victory. As a result, their worship consists in the main of an entire neglect of the one and many sacrfices to the others.

"But I have found in the little time that I have been here that the Korean has no deep-rooted religion of any sort, but is as changeable as the surface of the sea. If a man worships beneath a certain tree and then has a son born in his house, the you. whole village will flock to that spot until another villager finds that a certain rock is lavish with blessings. and then the tree is deserted and the rock is the popular idol for a season. Their worshippers will not be put off with promises. To speak in the vernacular, the spirit must deliver the affections of the mucous membranes, did not turn out well, though wingoods, to be popular. So it is not uncommon for a man to go the rounds of ancestor worship, emperor worship, mountain spirits, tree spirits, the elements, devil posts and Buddhism, to make sure of his blessing. In fact, I do not believe you can put your finger on any one re- and womanhood. ligion and say that it is peculiar to Korea. The people mix them all up and give them all a chance. They are polytheists with a vengeance.

COMMISSIONER

HEAD OF STATE DEPARTMENT

Called From the Chair of Rural and Highway Engineering of State University by Governor McCreary—Great Work Accomplished During the Past Three Years in Blue Grass

> Frankfort.-Kentucky's Road Commissioner, Robert C. Terrell, who has successfully put into operation the good roads laws of Kentucky and for the past three years has been the head of the road department, was born near Bedford, Trimble county, Kentucky, in 1884. After finishing the common school of that county, he entered the State University of Kentucky and graduated from that institution in 1906, receiving the degree of bachelor of engineering, and was given the master's degree in civil engineering in

> Immediately after receiving his degree in 1906, he took charge of the location of the Duck Fork extension of the Louisville & Atlanta railway, now a portion of the L. & N. system. In addition to locating the road, Mr. Terrell mapped and opened up a large coal field for the Kentucky River Coal & Coke Co., Which was afterwards leased by the Big Hill Coal Co. of Pennsylvania. In June, 1907, after completing the work with the Kentucky River Coal & Coke Co., Mr. Terrell was employed by the Arkansas, Louisiana & Gulf Railway at Hamburg, Arkansas, as assistant engineer on twenty miles of construction, where he remained until its completion in the summer of 1908.

Civil Eugineering of that institution. He was unanimously chosen professor of that chair. He immediately began the campaign to secure not only the undergraduate students in the course, but also arranged to have the practical road builders of the state to take short courses and attend lectures dur-ing the winter season. The course grew very popular, and many students were enrolled in both the two and four-year courses for undergraduate students and large numbers of the county road men, as well as the county judges and magistrates matriculated for the

In 1912, when the Department of Public Roads was established by the General Assembly, Governor McCreary called Mr. Terrell from the chair of rural and highway engineering of State University of Kentucky and appointed him the first Commissioner of Public Roads of Kentucky. Mr. Ter-Public Roads of Kentucky. Mr. Terrell assumed his duties on July 1, 1912, and has untiringly given his time and attention to the upbuilding of the road system of the state. Through his efforts and the showing made by the department prior to the meeting of the General Assembly of 1914 was made possible the passage of the state aid road laws in Kentucky, which provide for intercounty seat system of highways and a five-cent tax, together with the license tax on automobiles to be spent for the construction of the state system of highways, the state paying one-half the cost and the county one-half the cost ways, the state paying one-man cost and the county one-half the cost of such improvement.

Mr. Terrell, through his splendid corps of assistants and thorough organization, has had active supervision and charge of the preparation of the plans, specifications and estimates of cost and actual construction of more than one thousand miles of road, and has thoroughly demonstrated to the citizens of the Commonwealth of Kentucky the advantage of having roads constructed on scientific principles, and has made popular the new road laws and has been successful in securing the co-operation of the county officials throughout the state.

Mr. Terrell, when interviewed on the subject, stated he was well pleased with the success of the new road laws, and that a good showing had been the subject, stated he was well pleased with the success of the new road laws, and that a good showing had been the subject, stated he was well pleased with the success of the new road laws, and that a good showing had been the subject, stated he was well pleased with the success of the new road laws, and that a good showing had been the subject, stated he was well pleased with the success of the new road laws, and that a good showing had been the subject, stated he was well pleased with the success of the new road laws, and that a good showing had been the subject, stated he was well pleased with the success of the new road laws, and that a good showing had been the subject, stated he was well pleased with the success of the new road laws, and that a good showing had been the subject, stated he was well pleased with the success of the new road laws, and that a good showing had been the subject, stated he was well pleased with the success of the new road laws, and that a good showing had been the subject, stated he was well pleased with the success of the new road laws, and that a good showing had been the subject to the state all the subject to the subject to

IMBITIONS ARE BURIED IN WASHINGTON CITY

Once a Man Is Located There. He Is Evidently Compelled to Stay.

"The executive departments of Washington are the mausoleums of countless ambitions," observed former Representative Robert P. Hill, of Marion, Ill., at the Shoreham. "My advice to any young man of ambition is to stay away from Washington unless he relinquishes all hope. One might almost place above the doors of every department in Washington this sign, 'All young men who enter here leave hope behind.'

"There is just one advantage that the executive departments hold for young men-that is, to give the struggling youth without funds enough money and leisure to gain an education. Unfortunately, however, the great majority of young fellows who start out with the intention of getting an education and then quitting, get married, change The above boundary is recorded in Deed Book No. 19, page 182, Ohio County Clerk's office, being the same land conveyed by C. the strangest village in this country. Acoma is an Indian settlement of some 600 people, and means "The People of the Rock." Though the founding of the village is lost in the mist of antiquity, it is supposed the Acoma Indians chose this site as a measure of safety against the warlike Apaches and Navajos of their own day. Their selection was made with admirable judgment, for the walls of the rock are almost perpendicular. The earliest Spanish explorers found the tribe settled securely in their natural fortalice. Acoma has remained delightfully untouched by the influences of Spanish and American civilization. These Indians are quite well-to-do in sheep and cattle, which are pastured on the grazing lands of the valley, where summer villages are located and where the minimum of effort is required to care for the flocks and herds. Although less than 20 miles from a railroad, the village is comparatively unknown. The natives do not care for curious visitors. They do not wish to be stared at and pho- household.
